ALSA informs: Tickets acquired via Internet or phone are nominative. Accordingly, bearers may be required to show ID to justify that they were issued in their name. This applies when boarding buses directly or when requesting a print-out at the point of sale. ALSA reserves the right to admit tickets as valid when their legitimate ownership cannot be proven. When boarding the bus, passengers must show said documents to ALSA staff when required. If they fail to do so, the driver will refuse to accept the ticket. In this case, it will not be possible to pay the difference, and passengers will be required to acquire another ticket in order to travel.
